About This Game

It came from the 1950s! Terror straight out of the Atomic Age explodes onto your computer screen in this homage to "So bad it's bad" creature flicks such as The Beast of Yucca Flats and Eegah. Your trip down Route 66 quickly turns into a nightmare as local tales of a deadly race of radioactive beast men turn out to be more fact than myth! Match wits with the evil Dr. Arcturis as you race to put a stop to his dastardly experiments. Will you have what it takes to stop Earth from falling into the fiendish clutches of the saucer men from outer space? The choice is yours in "Terror of the Atomic Desert". Solve puzzles, evade monsters and match wits with local characters as the choices you make will lead to one of many possible endings.

Truly an exciting journey from start to finish. Watch out for snakes! the game opens with you, the protagonist, on your way to claim your late uncle's farm. The game took me by surprise with its ground breaking vehicle controls, breakneck atomic cola speeds and anti communist propaganda. Throughout the game you'll encounter puzzles requiring split-second decision making that could mean the difference between life and death. The best example of this is the prison scene, which i wont spoil. While playing you'll discover tidbits of lore scattered about. News articles that still contain grammar underlines from word that tell you the what, why, and where of the story. In my final hours, nay, minutes of this wonderful nugget of a horror game i was at the edge of my DXRacer gaming chair and truly felt solemn as i watched it all unfold. With memorable characters like ball game man, your uncle and landlord man it will be hard to forget this gem of an indie game. Watch out TensionSplice games, say no to the EA contract that awaits you after this game catches on to the masses!

TL;DR : For the low low price of 770.50 Zimbabwean funbucks this game is truly a steal. Grab it now before they catch on to the bargain and race it to the usual triple A price! I myself have about three dozen copies in my inventory for just this occasion, and i'm willing to sell them for only 20$ each.
